

Columbia College, Chicago, invests in over 100 JVC GY-HM100 camcorders

JVC Professional Products, USA, announced today that the Department of Film & Video at Columbia College Chicago — one of the largest accredited film schools in the world — has made a significant investment in JVC

ProHD camcorders.

The department, housed in the college's School of Media Arts, recently purchased more than 100 JVC GY-HM100 handheld camcorders to serve as the primary acquisition medium for hundreds of students completing its Foundations Program, a two-semester curriculum designed to introduce them to the craft of professional filmmaking.

For more information about the GY-HM100, click here.

To sign up for our in-house magazine, HIGHWAY, click here.